

Research document

Topic:

Data storage: what is the best way to store data in your project (SQL, no SQL, etc)

Introduction:

In the following document I will present an answer of the topic above and compare the following two ways of storing data:

- SQL
- No-SQL

Main question:

Which is the best way for storing data in software project?

Sub questions:

Differences when storing data?

Which is better for storing large amount of data?

What are the ideal use cases for each one?

Which one has better front-end compatibility?

Which one has better back-end compatibility?

Which is better for data storage optimization?